Old Business
The committee members reviewed and discussed a draft resolution for limiting the number of times an undergraduate student could repeat a course. Members supported a definition of an “attempt” consistent with the Reasonable Academic Progress review for financial aid. The committee members discussed the process through which students would be notified of their third attempt at a course and then blocked from further enrollment after completion of the third attempt. Holloway agreed to refer the questions to the University Registrar for consideration and feedback.

The committee discussed a draft resolution creating a limit for the number of hours that a dean can approve as an overload. The committee provided feedback to Holloway for the resolution justification.

The committee discussed information provided by Debra Smith relative to progress to degree. The committee recognized a need to gather more data to identify current practice and potential simplification of the policy.

The meeting was adjourned at 12 PM.
